

Activities

Diffusion Promotion Group

This group supports current research and development in the relevant technological fields and works to disseminate and publicize research results.

- Execution of verification experiments
- Promotion of standardization
- Development of applications
- Diffusion and promotion

Technology Development Group

This group provides guidelines, research directions and goals, for example to researchers and engineers in the relevant fields and also explores new markets.

- Promotion of research and development of super-high-resolution three-dimensional image technology
- Promotion of research and development of ultra-realistic sound reproduction
- Promotion of research and development of full-sensory communications, including haptic and olfactory perceptions
- Promotion of research and development of psychological and physiological effects of ultra-realistic communications